MAGAZINES FOR DECEMBER

THE AMERICAN-Ida M. Tarbell, "Mr. | and "The Spell of Whitman," by M. A Dooley," William Allen White, Clara DeWolfe Howe. Morris, George Madden Martin, Mary Stewart Cutting, David Grayson, Stewart Edward White, Samuel Hopkins Adams, Edward Peple and others have made The beautiful magazine the Outing company American Magazine for December a really notable number-rich and even in good Something stirring, delightful

preter's House."
The fiction is good. The author of "Emmy Lou" begins a new series of stories about an army child, "Letita, Nursery Corps, U. S. A." David Grayson proceeds with his serial "Adventures in Contentment." Mr. Adams and Mr. White continue "The Mystery." There are short stories by Emery Pottle, E. J. Rath, Ed-ward Peple, Mary Stewart Cutting and Dorothy Canfield.

SUCCESS.—This issue is strong in fiction. F. Hopkinson Smith contributes "Loretta of the Shipyards," a tale of Venetian life, full of the romance and splendid coloring of that wondrous City of the Sea. "The Second Offense," by William Hamilton Osborne, is a virile story of present-day business life, of a man, a sinner in the world's eyes, yet true and noble beyond his fellows. "For Skudsy" is one of Ellis Parker Butler's latest trisinner in the world's eyes, yet true and noble beyond his fellows. "For Skudsy" is one of Ellis Parker Butler's latest triumphs, a real Christmas story of a distinctly original cast. David Graham Phillips' great serial, "The Second Generation." Is continued, and "Melindy's Bachelor Club," by Charles F. Martin, and "Love Enough for All," by Mary Henford Ford, are stories of real human interest. Wallace Irwin's humorous poem, "The Quest of the Querulous," shows this pepular versifier at his best, and Edwin Markham's book talk and Patterson Du Bois' "The Mind of the Child" are Christmas features of exceptional interest. mas features of exceptional interest.

POPULAR SCIENCE MONTHLY.—The Popular Science Monthly for December contains the following articles: "The Eogoslofs," by President David Starr Jordan and George Archibald Clark; "The Development of the Telephone Service," by Fred DeLand; "The Jews: A Study of Race and Environment," by Dr. Maurice Fishberg; "Physical Degeneracy or Race Suicide?" by Sidney Webb; "Waterway Defenses of the Atlantic Coast," by William J. Roe: "The Simplification of French Spelling." by Professor Brander Matthews; "The Value of Science," by Prefessor H. Poincare; "Vesuvius in the Early Middle Ages." by Charles R. Eastman; "The New Engineering Building of the University of Pennsylvania;" "The Harveian Oration." Harveian Oration.

THE BOHEMIAN .- For sheer clever-THE BOHEMIAN.—For sheer cleverness, variety and quantity of interesting material, the Bohemian for December is a remarkable magazine. Among its short stories the more notably clever and amusing are Roland Ashford Phillip's "The Man and the Master Love," "Herbert Hawtrey," by Edward Marshall, and "Fancy's Elephant," by Elliott Walker. Every one of the seven or eight short stories is above the average of magazine Every one of the seven or eight short stories is above the average of magazine fiction, and the first part of "The Mag-net." by Adele Marie Shaw, grips the reader with a strongly sustained mys-

Among the humosous and personal history articles are "The Common-or-Garden Reporter," by Zoe Anderson Norris; "The Welsh Rabbit Family," by Miles Eradford, and "Peter Newell, the Boy Who Didn't Grow Up," by Jules E. Goodman.

DELINEATOR.-The December Delinis sufficiently premature to assist Christ-mas-makers with its hints for Christmas rifts and holiday intertainments besides ortaining an abundance of seasonable litrature calculated to fit in from now uncontaining an abilitation of the volunteers, and those for children and those for children. The Bue Kimono," by Virginia Woodward Cloud, and "Bette Evolves a Christmas Idea," by Elizabeth Preston Badger. "A Young Conspirator." and Anthony Hope's short story. "The Duke's Allotment," seem especially suitable for reading on winter evenings. But the crown of the Christmas literature is Edwin Markham's splendid poem, entitled "The Great Guest Comes." It is illustrated in colors by J. C. Leyendecker. The serial stories, "Fraulein Schmidt and Mr. Anstruther." by the Countess von Arnhim, and "The Chauffeur and the Chaperon." by the Williamsons, are continued, while Barry Pain's "The Diary of a Baby" is concluded. Essays for every day are "The Slavery of Superstitlon," by Lilian Bell; Pain's "The Diary of a Baby" is concluded. Essays for every day are "The Slavery of Superstition," by Lilian Bell; "Eliminating Non-essentials," by Lida Churchill, and "Pulling Together Through a Crisis," by William George Jordan. David Belasco contributes a most inter-esting description of "Making the Play TALES-Never has Venice been more in avor as a subject for authors, painters nd poets, says the editor of Transatiantic and poets, says the editor of Transatiantic Tales. One after the other they seek inspiration in the strange city of the lagoons. After Maurice Barres and the Count de Montesquiou, it is now the exquisite poet, Henry de Regnier, who tells us, both in prise and verse, its melancholy charm and eternal attractiveness. The Countess de Noailles pours forth her love for Venice, and Leon Daudet cloquentiy describes its fascination to those who would dream. Among the painters. who would dream. Among the painters, after Zien, there are Lobre, Boldini, Bompard and many others. But the master of them all was Ruskin, who knew so well how to express the very soul of the ancient and noble city. His work, "Stones of Venice," has been this year admirably translated into French for the first time by Mme Mathilde P. Cremieux. Mme. Mathilde P. Cremieux.

SCRIBNER'S-The Christmas number f Seribner's Magazine is sumptuous, both colors and black and white; and in In colors and black and white; and in its stories and articles it is remarkable for the variety and entertainment offered by the authors. The most effective color printing probably that has appeared in this magazine is the reproduction of Henry McCarter's series of "Scenes from the Early History of Ireland." These page the decorative quality of really great the Early History of Ireland." These have the decorative quality of really great painters and in addition show a careful interpretation of old Irish traditions. Dr. Douglas Hyde has explained them in a few pertirent notes. The short stories are: "The State o' Maine Girl." "The Veiled Lady of Stamboul." "Addoloratta's Intervention," "A Pickwick Ladle," "The Two-Stringed Bow."

ATLANTIC MONTHLY.-Seldom

ATLANTIC MONTHLY.—Seldom if ever has a single issue of a magazine offered such a wealth and variety of good reading as is to be found in the Christmas Atlantic. The keynote is struck at the very outset in a delightful and shrewdly-pointed essay, "Christmas and the Literature of Disillusion," by that most genial of the Autocrat's descendants. Samuel McChord Crothers. It is a wholesome optimistic—and withal seasonable—protest that he makes, and is sure to find a wide echo. The editors have made a peculiarly rich offering this month in fiction and poetry. Frank Dempster Sherman, John B. Tabb, Florence Earle Coates, Edmund Clarence Stedman are contributors in the latter same of the Milbor Tompkins. H. M. Rideout as among the most effective of the year, other contributions in this notable holiday issue can only be mentioned, though the mointy wight well have been "featured" on Tablets. Boynton; "The House of Lords," by William Everett: "In the Fens," by Arthur C. Benson; "The Keepsake," by Gelett Burgess; "A New Voice in French Fiction," by H. D. Sedgwick;

OUTING-The Outing Magazine for December is a magazine de luxe, the most has ever put forth. Take the paintings reproduced in color, for example. Such a series as J. M. Gleeson has done for or important appears on every page.
Other articles in the number are "Milea-Minute Madness," an automobile article by Walter Prichard Eaton, and "The Daly are many other paintings in color by by Walter Prichard Eaton, and "The Daly Banquet," by Clara Morris. An unsigned letter—"Out of the Heart"—presents a southern woman's view of the negro problem. The monthly editorials by the staff are run under the title "In the Interpreter's House."

Em-erson Hough's story. "When the June three of which are fully illustrated. Emerson Hough's story, "When the June Rise Is On." is the first contribution coming as a result of Mr. Hough's journey through the northwest for the Outing Magazine. Ralph D. Paine's "The Great Lakes and the Nation," is a new and striking installment in this author's famous series, "The Builders." John Burroughs, with his "Human Traits in Animals," contributes perhaps the most important article of the number.

SMITH'S .- Holman F. Day is rapidly SMITH'S.—Holman F. Day is rapidly becoming famous as a humorist through his short stories, which appear regularly in Smith's magazine. The story for this month. "The Foreman of the Scotaze Ancients," is the best yet, and that is saying a good deal. Smith's, besides serials, special articles and pictures, has half a dozen exceptionally good short groups and hold the semi-annual election of officers.

Wanita council No. 1, Degree of Pocations, will hold its regular weekly meeting beginning to the semi-annual election of officers.

Salt Lake circle No. 559, Women of Woodcraft, will hold its next regular meeting Dog. 13, in the new bearless hall.

The series of short stories now appearing in Smith's magazine will undoubtedly do more for his reputation as a writer and humorist of the highest grade than and humorist of the highest grade than anything he has turned out in the past. They are by far the best work from his pen that we have ever seen. The story which appears in the present issue of the magazine. "The Foreman of the Scotaze Ancients." is one of the funniest short stories that have been written in a short stories that have been written in a generation. The magazine contains an exceptional list of short stories and special articles by such men as Edwin L. Sabin. Charles Battell Loomis, Charles H. Cochrane and George Bronson-Howard. It has two big, well-printed art sections, a number of departments specially suited for women and a complete novelette, all in the one issue. ette, all in the one issue.

THE PEOPLE'S .- The December num-THE PEOPLE'S.—The December number of the People's magazine is the first issue under the changed policy by which the magazine has been made practically an all-fiction publication. From cover to cover, this periodical shows great strengthening and much improvement. The People's is now decidedly the strongest short-story magazine sold for 10 cents. It consists of 192 pages of copyright fictwion by the best authors, there being no serials, but one complete novel in each twion by the best authors, there being ho serials, but one complete novel in each number. The present issue contains contributions by Ellis Parker Butler, Lilian Bell, Harold R. Durant, Lloyd Osbourne, Gertrude Dix, Chauncey C. Hotchkiss, and other writers equally well known. and other writers equally well known. The novelette is a strong western story by Everett McNeil, and is entitled "The Round-up of Polly." The cover design for the December People's magazine is one of the most striking that has been seen on the stands for months. It represents an unusually pretty girl, in a broadbrimmed felt hat, secured by a flowing automobile veil tied under her chin. This picture, by George T. Tobin, is in yellow and brown tints, and is framed in a background of brilliant red, making an attractive art study.

iday spirit is carried through the whole magazine from its remarkably brilliant cover by Pal, to its last page by the same artist. It is a succession of artistic surprises and the exquisitely dainty frontispiece gives to the whole number a charm that is maintained throughout. Travis has contributed a timely and pretty center, page antibled "Christmas, Dance", and ter page entitled "Christmas Dance." publishers have set it off admirably with a gold border, giving an effect as pleasing as it is novel. The other artists of note, Will Grefe, Anna Westerman, and the great Drian, have contributed

THE WORLD TODAY.-Variety of top-ics, to suit a cosmopolitan circle of readers, to suit a cosmopolitan circle of readers, is a characteristic of the December issue of the World Today. For 15 cents this magazine offers a list of contents that appeals to everybody because it is of current, every-day interest. James of current, every-day interest. James Linn Nash tells how Professor H. L. Bolley in the North Dakota Agricultural college is "Saving the Farmers' Millions."
A graphic account of "Supply Submarines A graphic account of "Supply Submarines for the Russian Navy" is furnished by Arthur C. Johnson. Under the department head. "The Making of Tomorrow" we have articles on "The Profession of Forestry for Young Men," by George E. Walsh; "Physical Training in Japan," by Charles W. Hurd; "Australian Street Car Service," by C. Arthur Williams, and "Emergency Hospitals in Amusement Parks," by Charles J. P. Lucas.

TECHNICAL WORLD.-Would you believe it if some one said to you: "I have an attachment to my telephone that will an attachment to my telephone that will repeat for me at my convenience, and as many times as I may desire, any message sent over the wire in my absence?"
"No," you would politely answer: "Is that so?" and set the speaker down as a prevarienter.

Yet E. F. Stearns, in a clear and con-vincing article entitled "A Spool of Wire Speaks," published in the Technical World magazine for December, vouches World magazine for December, vouches for the truth of the above statement.

The telegraphone is the name of this mechanical marvel. It is the invention of Poulson, a Danish scientist. It is more wonderful in its operations than is even Edison's phonograph; for it does a startling variety of things. Should you telephone a man in his absence, a little bell will answer that connection has been will answer that connection has been made with the telegraphone at the other end. If at any time during this one-sided conversation you should desire to recall any statement, you merely reverse the instrument, run it back to where the error occurred, and start again. This process destroys the first record. Many other equally startling facts con-cerning this latest scientific discovery are recorded by Mr. Stearns in his absorb-
